

Already Have An Accountant – Why Do You Need A New Accountant?

Please take a moment to ask yourself these questions about your current Accounting and Bookkeeping situation:

- Do you feel you are not receiving sufficient business advice from your accountant on your business operations?
- Is your accountant failing to communicate your present condition to you to on a regular basis and help you have a better understanding of where you and your business are?
- Do you feel your accountant is an expense for your business rather than an investment in your future?
- Does your accountant wait until the end of the year before doing any tax planning with you to help you minimize your taxes? Or worse yet, wait until tax time to review your work? – That's like driving a car through a rear-view mirror.
- Do you lack confidence that your bookkeeper/accountant is knowledgeable about all the current and changing tax laws and how they will affect you?
- Do you feel that your accountant does not really care about your business needs, just the numbers?
- Have you outgrown your bookkeeping/accounting service and their ability to handle your needs?
- Do you have the frustration of never knowing what your accounting bill is going to be until after you have received it?
- Is the information you receive from your accountant difficult to read and understand?
- Is your accountant having you prepare your own payroll checks and bank reconciliation?
- Have you ever been penalized for payroll tax violations?
- Are you receiving your financial statements late from your accountant? Do you know what they mean when you get them.
- Are your tax returns consistently filed late or extended by your accountant?

If you answered YES to one or more of these questions, you are NOT receiving everything that you should be receiving from your current accounting relationship.
